MR. "V." SETTLED WITH CANFIELD FOR $130,000

Delahunty Testifies that Representative of Young Patron of Gambler Gave 130 $1,000 Bills to Cancel Notes for $300,000.

A startling feature was introduced to-day at the trial before Justice Newburger, in the Supreme Court, of the suit of John Delahunty to collect $45,000 counsel fees from Richard Canfield, whose gambling house, at No. 5 West Forty-fourth street, formerly had the play of New York's gilded youth.

The lawyer, testifying in his own behalf, declared the defendant's income up till the time his place was raided by District-Attorney Jerome was $300,000 a year. He is worth to-day, according to Mr. Delahunty, who had charge of his private affairs more than $5,000,000 in cash and property and several hundreds of thousands in I. O. U's.

This immense fortune was won from the time Canfield moved to Forty-fourth street, in 1898, until Dec. 2, 1902, when the authorities closed his house.

Although every effort is being made to avoid mentioning the names of Canfield's rich patrons, Mr. Delahunty admitted that the names of "Mr. V." and Jesse Lewisohn had appeared in the John Doe proceedings against the gambler. Mr. V. is believed to be Reginald Vanderbilt. He is thought to be the man who signed notes for $300,000. Delahunty testified that these notes were settled by the payment of $130,000.

Mr. Canfield was in court some minutes before proceedings began. He was neatly attired in a close-fitting suit of English textures and smiled handsomely when he met the lawyers.

The first witness called was Mr. Delahunty. Edmund L. Mooney, his counsel, began to question him.

Q. How long have you known Mr. Canfield? A. Fifteen years.

Q. In 1902 what services did you perform for the defendant?

Told of the Raid.

Mr. Delahunty told of having received a telephone message from Canfield a few hours prior to District-Attorney Jerome's raid on the famous place. He told of the prosecutor's sensational entrance through one of the windows leading to the gambling house.

"David Bucklin, Canfield's manager," he continued, "was in the house, Mr. Canfield and he spoke to the District-Attorney. Meanwhile the police were ransacking the house. The evidence secured was from a storeroom on the top floor."

Mr. Delahunty then went into the details of the arrest of the gambler and his manager.

"One whose complaint were Bucklin and Canfield arrested?" asked the lawyer.

"A man named Jacobs," the witness replied. "He was a detective of the Hawkshaw variety. I saw Canfield the next day and he denounced Jacobs as evidence as a rack of lies. He declared men of his class would not be allowed in the house and declared Jerome was criminally and civilly liable for the manner in which he entered the place."

Mr. Delahunty asked the jury to believe that Jacobs was a man of low character and that he was connected with the raid and authorized me to go to any extent in the matter of expense. This was Dec. 2. The following day he insisted that I go ahead with these actions, as the newspaper reports of the Jerome raid had hurt his prestige."

Wanted Story Corrected.

Mr. Delahunty then went on to say Mr. Canfield had asked him to request the newspapers to correct the story of the raid, which was given out from the view point of the District-Attorney.

On December 4, 1902, three days following the raid, Canfield wrote a letter to the lawyer in which he said: "I know some things you should know. It will be easy to prove that Jerome is a rascal."

Mr. Delahunty testified, took the stand against Canfield. As his testimony was considered by the jury, he was to be perjury in every detail, he employed detectives to find a man named Willard, whom Jacobs said incited him to Canfield. Willard proved to be a myth. Further discovery of the detectives led to the exposure of the rascal's plan to perjure himself.

It was then brought out that Canfield dropped his contemplated criminal actions against Jerome and the other officials only because of the fact he could not take the stand and tell of his business.

"He would have to admit he was conducting a gambling house," Mr. Delahunty concluded.

It was then brought out that Jesse Lewisohn was the man who was in the "John Doe" proceedings instituted

COLD HELPS THE CARDINALS BEAT GIANTS

McGraw Protested in Vain Against Donning Uniforms at St. Louis.

WILTSE THE TWIRLER.

Few Fans Turn Out at St. Louis, but the Game Is Lively.

SCORE BY INNINGS.

BATTING ORDER:

By BOZEMAN CULLER.

ST. LOUIS, May 28.—A chilly sweep over St. Louis last night, and as the Giants muffled themselves up to get busy it was cold enough to freeze the horns off a goat. The champions made an earnest effort to have the game called off so as to make an early start for home, but Mr. Robinson refused to budge.

The attendance consisted of the gatekeeper, the peanut boy and a few of their personal friends who came in on passes. It was a frost that went two ways. New York protested against playing in the cold, but when the Cardinals arrived they still insisted on going with the show. They went after the game with blood in their eyes.

McGraw, accompanied by his swollen jaw, crawled out of the game and decided that Wiltse was good enough to do the pitching. As New York had to catch the 5.20 train, it was decided to start at 7 o'clock and the game was not to go over nine innings even if the score should be tied. With these conditions thoroughly understood the fun began.

First Inning.

Brennan was a corpse on McBride's last home to Beckley. Browne sat down after three and a half innings. McGraw singled sharply to left. Mertes forced McGinn. McBride to Bennett. NO RUNS.

Bennett swatted to center for a base. Shannon beat out a roller to Devlin. Snoot popped to Brennan, trying to sacrifice. Beckley singled to center. Bennett scoring, but Shannon and Beckley were caught at second in the middle, both men being touched out at the same time by Devlin. ONE RUN.

Second Inning.

Dahlen sent a long fly to Shannon. Arndt made a good stop and perfect throw to Beckley, nabbing Devlin. Gilbert walked. Gilbert died stealing.

Browner catching for Giants, Brennan's knee being hurt. Arndt died on Devlin's fast ball. Mertes lined to Devlin. McBride gave Devlin a hard chance and died at first. NO RUNS.

Third Inning.

Strang struck out, but Grady led the first blow by and Shannon reached first in safety. Wiltse fouled to Himes and Strang was caught at second on a quick double play. Browner lined to Shannon. NO RUNS.

Grady lined his full weight against the first blow pitched and sent it to the clubhouse for a circuit of the bases. Thompson rolled an easy grounder to Dahlen and died at McGinnville. Bennett died on a fast play by Gilbert and McGinn. Shannon beat out a tag to Devlin and stole second. Snoot ground out. Gilbert to McGinn. ONE RUN.

Fourth Inning.

Browne led three straight strikes slide by and sat down. McGinn lined to Snoot. Mertes was easy for McBride and Beckley died at first on a good throw by Devlin. Arndt batted one to center for a base. Himes sent a fly to Strang. Arndt was almost nipped at first. McBride struck out. NO RUNS.

Fifth Inning.

Dahlen floated to left and Shannon got under his spiral. Shannon made a great catch of Devlin's low liner. Gilbert singled to Bennett. NO RUNS.

Grady popped to McGinn. Gilbert squeezed. Thompson's pop. Bennett popped to Dahlen. NO RUNS.

Sixth Inning.

Strang's grounder went to Bennett and he died at first. Wiltse batted one to center and took a first. Browne put a one-base to left. Browne tripped against the right field bleachers. Grady popped to McGinn. McGinn popped a Texas leaguer in center. Browne passed ball. McGinn took second on a throw. Dahlen doubled. Bennett scored. McGinn counting. Dahlen hit a fast throw to McBride. FOUR RUNS.

Shannon struck out. Snoot sent a
